'Charades' To Play at Lakeland's Orientation

The Charades, widely-known combo from Cleveland, will play for the dance with which Lakeland Community College's first orientation program — "Tighten-up" — will be climaxed.

Orientation begins early Sept. 21 at the college. The dance for the new students and upperclassmen takes place in the evening at Holiday Inn.

Reservations are being taken at the Student Activities Center in Lakeland's Cleveland Trust Center, Painesville.

The Charades, together over a year, are now making records. They also maintain a concert schedule.

Buddy Maver, spokesman, plays drums. He attended John Carroll University. Jay Mohler, who plays bass, is from Ohio University.

John Martin plays tenor sax, Tony Styles, guitar, and Terry McLeod, baritone sax. Terry is a former student of Kent State University.

The Charades', 20 and 21 years old, harmonize on their programs. Their singing range varies from bass to soprano.
